Sponsor's Voice

-Sang Hoon Han

"It was 1969 when I immigrated to Canada with my wife and two sons holding their tiny hands. As a breadwinner, I began to worry about what I should do to live in a strange foreign land right after immigration. In the early days of immigration, I read the Toronto Star newspaper very hard to study English, and from the information I read, I formed my business plan.

Thanks to my hard work during my 50 years of immigration so far, I am now very successful in running a property management business that is quite large, and my younger son continues to do it. For me, the development of the community, especially the Korean community, is as essential as the success of my life. I have been a sponsor to help with every opportunity, and I am pleased to be able to help KCWA this time. It's a pity to get older, but as long as I have strength, it is my goal and desire to continue to support the community and meet its needs. KCWA has also done well so far, and I hope KCWA will continue to work hard for immigrants. I firmly believe that my support will be of great help in providing the services and programs needed by the community."
